Dear Les:

Re: Fish & Kotzer books on Estate Law & Practice

Many thanks for sending me copies of your texts, co-written by you and your partner, Barry Fish.

There are, of course, many abstruse tomes written on estate law by and for lawyers and judges but, unfortunately, such works are not too helpful for the public at large.

Your works, on the other hand, constitute a feast of information and learning about estate matters for the lay person and contain much wisdom and wit about a complex subject with great clarity.

As a former judge, I express the hope that your works will receive widespread distribution across Canada because they put a clear and unvarnished focus on both the pitfalls and merits of estate practice, including the high costs and often family emotional damage of occasional estate litigation.

I also hope that estate lawyers will read them as they may "humanize" their practices!

Best regards

Gordon Killeen
